Dear Russ:

I want to once again thank you for the attention to detail and service that you have provided on the 9400 C-arm we purchased from you this past year. My apology for not getting this letter off to you sooner; however, as you can imagine we have been so much busier due to the increased volume of procedures we now perform in the clinic for patients. This has resulted in some changes in our standard operational procedures not the least of which has been associated with accounts receivables which have been markedly increased since we purchased the C-arm. This machine is used to perform on a daily basis and performs as well as the 9800's or 9600's that are used in hospitals.

Please feel free to use my name and clinic number as a professional and personal reference. I would be pleased to personally discuss with anyone questions they may have regarding your company, product and the service you provide.

Again, thank you. If you should find yourself in the St. Louis area any time, please give me a heads up and we will go out for dinner.

Cordially,

Dear Ted,

This letter is just a note of thank you to express my gratification and appreciation for the services you have provided before and after the sale of the C-Arm.

As you may recall I did purchase OEC C-Arm from you last year along with the pain management table. There was some problem for a couple of days for delivery, which was because of the freight company and not on your part since it was shipped from your office on time, but even for that your company adjusted the cost for the time I had lost in cancelling the patients, which I believe generally no other company would do that. This is to the extent that I got even a call from your president apologizing for this delay and reassuring me that the lose that I would incur because of this very rare delay would be compensated and this was done before I even paid the full amount. This was very professional and a generous gesture on your company's part.

Even after the sale we had your technician, Wayne, come and train our staff. When I asked as to how long he could stay to train my staff his answer was "as long as it takes". There was no rush. He was very thorough. He started with the basics to all the advanced features and continued to do that until each and every staff member of mine was comfortable using that and had all of their questions answered.

I did have a slight technical problem for which your company's response was amazingly prompt. Although I live in a relatively remote area in Kansas, but in just two days you not only had all the necessary parts shipped, but also you had a person from your company come and fix that, this was impressive.

Also while working on the C-Arm your company person noted that I could use bigger wheels on my C-Arm because I have carpeted floor in the pain management room, this was changed at absolutely no cost to me, that made it a lot easier for me to maneuver. Once again this was appreciated.

Also whenever I needed to order any supplies such as film rolls those were delivered promptly.

In summary, I have nothing but good things to say about your company. The way the whole transaction was handled and the post sale care was taken, I would have absolutely no reservation to recommend your company to anybody who is looking for a C-Arm or pain table. I was impressed with the service and professional attitude of all of the people of your company.

In fact the warranty that I got, the service that I got was so good that even a brand new would not have given me with the kind of warranty that you do.

Last, but not the least, the equipment was in excellent condition. A thorough refurbishing job was done on that. It looked like new with no scratches, dents, all the cords and everything was new and it has been working without any problems for me.

In the future I am thinking of upgrading my C-Arm and even pain management table. With the sale and service like your company I would not even look elsewhere.

In summary, thank you and I really appreciate your company being honest and standing by what it says and giving units in excellent condition and the professional and prompt service after the sale.

Sincerely,
